

Brief Summary

This week (28 August-2 September 2020) the main concerns of callers to Radio Ergo's feedback platform were locusts, Coronavirus, floods, and water and food shortages. The calls about locusts were the most in number. There were slightly more calls about Coronavirus than in the previous week. The following summarises the calls by theme.

Locusts – the largest number of calls came from the north, especially Sanag, with others from Bari, Galgadud, Hiran, and Gedo. Sanag callers seemed to be reporting new invasions of locusts, for example in Erigavo, where one described a blanket of locusts covering them. As well as complaining about losses of pasture and crops, people wanted urgent help in controlling the locusts.

COVID19 – the call about Coronavirus were spread from around the country, with most wanting information about the symptoms, spread, and prevention of the virus. Several wanted to know how to distinguish COVID19 from ordinary flu. Pastoralist families in Sanag said they did not know how to protect themselves as they lacked health centres and doctors. A caller in Lasqoray, Sanag, mentioned sick cats that he thought could be spreading the virus in the area. A caller in Garowe said he and his son were sick, and their goats also had diseases, and they needed aid. A caller in Bardera, Gedo, reported the deaths of birds and chickens and wanted the experts to confirm if this could be linked to Coronavirus. A caller in Guriel claimed that camel urine could cure COVID19. Several female callers complained that jobs and livelihoods had been affected by Coronavirus. A female in Adado said she was unemployed as her small business had folded. Another female in Kismayo said she had to close her small restaurant. A caller in Galkayo, meanwhile, welcomed the reopening of schools.

Floods – callers mostly from Hiran, as well as from Lower Shabelle and Gedo, reported being affected by renewed flooding. A farmer calling from Lafole, Hiran, said they had lost their crops and generators and were stranded on an island of land with their children and remaining livestock. They called for help as the deyr rains were approaching. Another caller in Beletweyn, Hiran, said the farmers had lost their crops and houses and were faced by diseases including malaria. Several callers demanded sustainable solutions to the recurring problems of river flooding.

Water and food scarcity – there was an increase on the previous week in the numbers of communities reporting water and food shortages. Mudug produced the largest number of such calls. Some said the water catchments had dried up and they had no generators, or the pumps at water wells had broken. Some said they were unable to support their families. A displaced community from Sool said they needed shelter and water in Garowe. IDPs in Somaliland, Galgadud, and Gedo asked for help with water and food. A caller from Dinsor in Bay said their humanitarian situation was being overlooked. Heavy rains left some communities in need of shelter and assistance (e.g. Somaliland and Bari), whilst others in Togdher and L. Shabelle welcomed the replenishment of water supplies and grazing for their animals.

Livestock – there were a number of calls from pastoralists about camel and goat diseases in Somaliland, Puntland, Galmudug, Hiran and Gedo. Most were asking for information and intervention from veterinary experts and partners.
