

Brief Summary

The most common concern among callers to Radio Ergo's independent platform this week (16-22 December 2020) was the devastating locust invasions across many parts of the country, as has been the case since August. This week there was a significant increase in calls from locust-hit communities in Hiran region. Other concerns from callers were water shortages in certain areas; price rises in northern and central regions; and Coronavirus, with some callers citing widespread flu-like symptoms. The following summarises the calls by theme.

Locusts – in the north, calls came from Togdher (especially Buhodle); Sanag; unidentified locations in Somaliland; Bari and Nugal. Callers in Buhodle said their goats had no fodder and the land was bare. Others wanted to alert FAO and other agencies to their plight. In Sanag, people spoke of new locust invasions as well as drought. Several pastoralist callers said their livelihoods were on hold due to the effects on the livestock. One caller in Somaliland appreciated the advice given on the radio and said they had partial success in driving off the locusts using smoke. One caller said people should stop complaining as locusts were sent by god. In Qandala, Bari, a community that survived the Gati cyclone said they had been hit by locusts. There were a number of calls from Nugal and Mudug.

In Galkayo, a caller said their livelihoods had been crippled due to the loss of vegetation and they needed aid. As in previous weeks there were many calls from across Galgadud, including Gideys, Guriel, Adado, Abudwak, Balanbale, Biyo-gadud, and Dusamareb. A female caller in Adado was worried that her livestock had diarrhoea after feeding on locust hopper bands. Another in Guriel said the locusts had contaminated the water sources. People in Dusamareb wanted to know where to get locust pesticides. A large number of calls came in from different districts in Hiran. In Mataban, farmers said they were seeing more and more locusts and feared a second loss of harvests to the insects. Locusts were also reported in Mahas. In Beletweyne, callers said they had tried shooting at the swarms to no avail. There was not a single shady tree left in the area. Farmers said they had lost their previous harvest to floods and had invested large sums in their current crops, which were now at risk from locusts. A number of callers in El-Gal reported waves of new locusts and asked for help. In Middle Shabelle, people said the locusts were flying in from Galmudug. Farmers in Jowhar feared a return of the locusts now they had planted crops. There were also callers from Gedo and Bakool. In Hudur, people said they had not received any spraying control measures.

Water – callers in parts of Sanag reported water shortages and dried up wells. There were also a number of callers from Gedo (Dollow and Bardera) complaining of lack of water, including some in IDP camps where they also cited other needs including food and shelter.

Price rises – callers in Sanag, Bosaso, Garowe and Galkayo complained of rising prices and lack of the local currency affecting small businesses and low income people.

COVID19 – callers from different areas reported widespread illness marked by coughing and asked for diagnosis. These were from Togdher (Buhodle and Nagadweyen); Abudwak; Bakool (Wajid); and M. Shabelle. A caller in Wajid said there had been no Covid testing there. Callers from other areas had questions to the radio doctors about symptoms and prevention. A caller in Galkayo wanted to know about the efficacy of masks in preventing infection. (Radio Ergo is continuing with daily information and other programming and local reporting around COVID19.)
