

Brief Summary

A large number of callers to Radio Ergo's platform this week (22-28 April 2021) celebrated the arrival of rainfall with relief, following the prolonged dry period in many parts of the country. However, callers in some places reported new waves of locusts arriving with the rain. Others indicated shelter needs. At the same time, callers in many areas complained of continuing drought conditions and water scarcity. There was also a rise in livestock herders reporting animal diseases. COVID19 remained a concern among callers. The following summarises the week's calls by theme.

COVID19 – calls on this theme came from across the country. There were several calls from Sanag, including Erigabo and Badhan, where callers noted Coronavirus or a coughing disease in their localities. Female callers in Galkayo and Guriel said COVID19 was widespread. A caller in Adado said people were worried about the vaccine and wanted to know more about its effects. In Bosaso, a caller asked if someone suffering from COVID19 should fast during Ramadan. A few callers in Mogadishu asked about repeat infections and the difference between COVID19 and flu. A female caller in Beletweyne said that the river was filling up after the rain and children would be swimming there soon, so parents should take care over the spread of the virus.

IDPs – there were complaints from IDPs in Jowhar (M. Shabelle), and Bardera and Dollow (Gedo) saying they needed aid. An IDP caller in Baidoa said the rain was heavy and they needed shelter and food aid.

Livestock – callers had various questions about livestock diseases affecting their animals in Togdher, Sanag, Bari, Galgadud, and Lower Shabelle.

Rainfall – calls announcing the arrival of rain came most notably from listeners in parts of central Somalia, with some also from parts of Somaliland and others from parts of the south. People in various parts of Togdher said the rain was filling the water catchments and they were now better off. However, some said there was still little pasture for the animals. Similarly in parts of Sanag and Sool people welcomed rainfall in some areas, whilst callers in Hingalol and Qabri-bayah said their shelters were damaged by rain and they needed shelter materials. In Puntland, a female caller in Gardafu said some houses had been destroyed in heavy rain, and villagers in a valley in Nugal said the roads were flooded. Various callers in Mudug welcomed the arrival of rain. In Harardhere, a caller said the rain was heavy but they had already lost their livestock earlier and they needed food. People welcoming rain in Galgadud called from Adado, Dhusamareb, Do'oley, Balanbale, and Guriel. A caller in Buleburte, Hiran, said the rain had caused the river to flood and they wanted assistance.

Locusts – calls about locusts came from various regions, in some cases where rainfall had started and others where there was still drought. A caller in Hingalol, Sanag, said the locusts descended after heavy rainfall. An agro-pastoralist caller in another unspecified part of Sanag said they were beset by locusts and drought. Locust invasions were reported in Garowe and Godalo in Nugal. In Mudug, callers in Wisil and Dagari said they had been invaded by locusts with the rain. A caller in Adado described the locusts that came with the rain as brown in colour. In Burdhubo, Gedo, a caller said they were devastated by locusts and still suffered drought and water shortage. A caller in Shalambood, L. Shabelle, said they were invaded by huge numbers of locusts and needed control measures.

Drought & Water shortage – callers in Awdal and Marodi-Jeh said the drought was prolonged, livestock were weak, and they had water and food shortages and appealed for aid. A female caller in Buhodle (Togdher) said their situation was worsening daily due to drought and conflict. A caller in Erigabo (Sanag) said the water scarcity and drought continued, their livestock were in limbo, and locusts had destroyed all the pasture. Parts of Sool were also experiencing continued drought and water scarcity, according to callers. In Mudug, callers in and around Galkayo still had no rainfall or water. In Hobyo, on the coast, a caller said their livestock were sick and they were suffering from drought and conflict. Callers in parts of Galgadud (Adado, Dhusamareb, Abduwak) also reported lack of rainfall and water scarcity. In Gedo, farmers in Bardera said their crops had failed and they needed rain. Pastoralists in Burdhubo sad they did not know where to migrate to in order to find water.
