

Brief Summary

The most popular topics among callers to Radio Ergo's audience feedback platform this week (21-27 October 2021) included the prevailing drought conditions in many parts of the country, especially among callers from northern and central regions plus Gedo in the south; invasions of locusts in parts of Somaliland, Puntland, and central; and protection concerns resulting from the conflict in Guriel. People also called to celebrate the arrival of rainfall in some areas, although others reported lack of shelter in heavy rainfall and some flooding. COVID19 was a concern for some callers in the north. The following summarises the calls by theme.

Water crisis – a number of callers in Togdher said the drought was badly affecting livestock and people. One caller said a woman and newborn baby had died on 24 October in circumstances related to lack of water. A caller in Sarar said people had flocked there seeking grazing and water and the resources were being fast depleted. He also reported an outbreak of diarrhoea and asked for government intervention. In Sool, one of the callers said their goats and camels were affected. The animals they used to fetch water were becoming too weak to walk the distances. A caller in Bari said their animals were dying due to drought as well as disease and they lacked veterinary treatments. Another caller in Cuun, Puntland, said they had no rainfall and people had migrated to Bari and Sool in search of water and grazing. A Puntland caller also mentioned an influx of displaced from Lasanod and rising prices causing further distress. Callers in Mudug said they had not had any rain and livestock were dying. There were many callers from parts of Galgadud. A female caller in Mirisyale said people were leaving the area but her family was too poor to leave. A caller in Adado said people were travelling as far as 90 kilometres away to where they heard there was rainfall. Many called for water aid. Several callers in Hiran including IDPs complained of water shortage. Among the callers from Gedo, one said they got water nine kilometres away, but their water-carrying donkeys were dying.

Locusts – in the north callers reported locust attacks in Sanag, Togdher, and Sool. One caller in Garadag said his two farms had been invaded and they needed intervention. Farmers in parts of Puntland and Galgadud reported locusts eating their crops. One farmer in Galgadud said they had taken loans to finance their maize farms and now the crops were being destroyed.

Guriel conflict – callers expressed concerns over the conflict and called for a ceasefire and urgent peace efforts. Some urged conflict parties to respect civilians. A female caller in El-Baraf, M. Shabelle, said they were among those displaced by the conflict and needed humanitarian aid.

COVID19 – callers in Salahley, Qoryalle, and Badhan reported widespread COVID-like symptoms in their areas.
