Issued: 17 Feb 2023

Brief Summary

Callers this week (9-15 February 2023) to Radio Ergo's feedback platform were focused predominantly on the ongoing drought and its harsh direct and indirect consequences. Calls from across the different regions mentioned acute water shortage, high prices, lack of food and livestock fodder, displacement, and the need for humanitarian aid. Some callers also expressed concerns over the conflict in Lasanod and the need for a peaceful solution as well as aid for those affected. The following summarises the calls by theme.

Drought & water crisis - in Somaliland, the majority of calls on drought-related issues came from various parts of Sanag region. Callers said that livestock were dying and people needed water and food aid. One caller in the mountainous Golis area said drought there had wreaked havoc. A caller in Sool said they were facing strong winds exacerbating drought conditions, and that their goats had died of starvation. Another Somaliland caller said the little water left in their village was bitter and their goats were not producing any milk. In Puntland, a caller in Gardafu, Bari region, said they faced drought and food shortage and needed aid. A caller in Nugal said he was both a pastoralist and a farmer and the lack of rainfall was concerning for his livelihood. Several callers in Mudug, especially Bandiradley, said the drought was severe and despite raising their appeals they had not received a response. Many callers from different parts of Galgadud said the drought was affecting them badly and they needed aid. A caller in El-god said they were keeping horses and camels and all of them had died in the drought. In Hiran, a caller in Beletweyne noted a drop in the river water level and said the water was dirty and could lead to a cholera outbreak. Callers in Afmadow and Buale in Middle Juba said they lacked water and food. In Wanlaweyn, Lower Shabelle, one caller said their livestock were dying whilst another female caller said their farms were failing due to years without rainfall. In Bay region, IDP callers in Baidoa said they needed water aid, with one female caller complaining about the long distance women had to walk to get water. A farmer in Baidoa said he had dug a well but needed pipes and a generator to water his farm. In Gedo, a caller in Bardera said their nearest water source was the river 60 kilometres away. Several callers in northern and central areas complained of attacks by wild animals, especially foxes and monkeys, due to the drought also affecting wildlife.

Aid – some specific appeals for aid illustrated the hardship in many areas of the country. A female caller in Guriel said all her livestock had perished leaving her with no income and in need of humanitarian aid. A father in Bulogadud, Lower Juba, said he and his children had been displaced by conflict and had no food or shelter. A caller in Gedo said they had no water and were destitute and asked for cash to be sent to him on his phone. A female caller said they had no money to go to hospitals when they were sick.

Conflict – again this week the conflict in Lasanod concerned a number of callers. One caller in Sool said people had been killed, and social services and mosques destroyed. Others spoke of displacement due to the conflict and the need for aid for those affected.
