

Brief Summary

Most callers to Radio Ergo's feedback platform this week (23-29 March 2023) noted the welcome arrival of rainfall in their areas, with some reporting flooding or heavy rainfall causing damage to homes and livestock. Many said the rain would help them towards recovery, although some said they still faced hardships and needed help. Some other callers spoke of continuing drought and water shortage in their areas. People displaced from conflict in Lasanod to different places called asking for various forms of humanitarian aid. The following summarises the calls by theme.

Flooding – in Somaliland, several callers said that heavy rainfall had caused damage, including killing livestock and further weakening those already frail from the drought. They said mosquitoes were breeding in stagnant water, and plastic sheeting for shelter was also needed. In Galmudug, several callers in Dusamareb said a bridge had collapsed, some homes had been flooded and goats washed away, and diseases had broken out. Callers in Adado and Abudwak also spoke about damage to homes and flooded roads. Callers in Bardera, Gedo, said farmers had been affected by the damaging floods and the supply routes for food had been cut off. In parts of Bay region, families living in flimsy shelters said they had lost their belongings. One caller said the river Juba had flooded across homes and farms, in an unspecified location.

IDPs – people displaced by conflict in Lasanod called from various other places across Somaliland and southern Ethiopia, asking for shelter and other aid during Ramadan. A female caller in Sanag said they needed a peace settlement in Lasanod so they could return home. A caller in Gumbur'aro, Sarar, said the IDPs living there had been neglected and the area was suffering badly from drought.

Drought & water shortage – a few callers from different regions said they were still suffering from drought and high temperatures and lack of rainfall. A caller in Hargeisa said water was short and they wanted to be connected to piped water.

Rain - callers in various parts of Somaliland welcomed rainfall, including Awdal, Hargeisa, and Togdher. Callers in Balianle, Togdher, said their water sources had been replenished. A female caller said her goats were now producing milk. Another caller said his livestock were yet to recover. Another in an unspecified location in Somaliland said they had received some rainfall but still needed UN and NGOs to deliver aid as they were suffering the effects of drought. Across Galgadud, callers expressed thanks for the rainfall. A caller in Abudwak added that their hardships remained, despite the blessing. A caller in Dusamareb said the city now had water and the situation had improved. Many people called from Bay region, especially Baidoa, simply celebrating rainfall. On the other hand, a caller in Burhakaba said he had nine children, and they were living in a poor shelter unable to withstand the rain. Various other callers said they were blessed to have rainfall during Ramadan despite any damage that it might cause.
