Brief Summary
The most popular topic among callers to Radio Ergo’s audience feedback platform this week (4-9 September 2025) was the drought, water shortage, and impact on lives and livelihoods being felt particularly by people in Somaliland, Puntland, and central regions. At the same time, several callers across scattered parts of these regions called to say that rainfall had started. This week there were a large number of calls to the Radio Vet programme from pastoralists reporting diseases affecting goats, camels and cows. Several callers in IDP camps notably in Galgadud requested aid. The following summarises the calls by theme. IDPs – three callers including two females called about the lack of food, water, and shelter in IDP camps in Adado, in Galgadud region. They said they had been displaced from Amaro and Aad and needed help. Another caller in Qardo, Bari region, said there were displaced people without any food or shelter and he wanted to raise the matter. Infrastructure – three callers in Bardera, Gedo region, called asking aid groups to help them build back the bridge that was destroyed in recent flooding, cutting off farming areas from the town. There have been several calls about this in previous weeks and months asking the government to help. Mental health – callers to Radio Ergo’s weekly Mental Health programme often open up about complaints and seek the advice of experts. A caller in Dhudhub, Bari, said he was feeling anxiety and sadness that was making his heart race. A female caller in Gedo region wanted to know how to control feeling overwhelmed by her situation and constantly talking to herself. Nutrition – the weekly Nutrition programme also draws regular questions. A female caller in Wanlaweyn, Lower Shabelle, said her three-year-old daughter was malnourished and she wondered if she should be breastfeeding her. Another female caller in Adado said they were facing widespread malnutrition in the area. Drought and water shortage – in the north, callers in Burao and Durugsi in Togdher region and Haylan and Badhan in Sanag region said that people and livestock were short of water due to the drought. A caller in Hiniya village prayed for rainfall to alleviate the severe drought and asked for the Somaliland government to help them get food and water aid. A caller in Lan-farahweyne said their water sources had dried up and they were appealing for help. In Puntland’s Bari region, several called from Karkar describing severe drought and water shortage, as well as hot, windy weather. A caller in Alula said their livestock were being affected. In Galgadud region, several called from Guriel including a female caller saying they were desperate with food and water shortage. A caller in Balanbale said the water pumps had broken down and they needed help. A caller in Huurshe said they faced devastating drought and didn’t have fodder for their livestock or food for themselves. A caller in Abudwak said their goats were healthy but lacked fodder due to the drought and they needed help accessing it. A female caller in Dhumodle said she used to have hundreds of goats but only 35 remained. They had been dying of drought and diseases, and they needed help. A few callers in parts of Hirshabelle and Middle Juba mentioned their concerns over the lack of rainfall and scarce water. A caller in El-bulale said the severe drought had affected their camels, cows and goats. Rainfall – some callers, including those in scattered parts of regions where drought was reported, cited the onset of rain. A caller in Abudwak, Galgadud, said they had received rainfall and the livestock and the people were doing well, although there was conflict in the area. Another in Burhabaka, Bay region, said they were having heavy rainfall in the area.

Livestock – callers described symptoms among goats of runny noses, diarrhoea, mouth sores, and coughing. Some cited CCPP in Galgadud. One caller in Abudwak said their camels and goats had cowpox disease and they needed help with treatment. Callers in Guriel and Gobweyn said runny noses and CCPP were affecting young and old camels. A caller in Baidoa wanted veterinary help and advice for an unknown disease affecting his sick cows.

Wildlife – a female caller in Kalabeyr, Sool, said monkeys had invaded their well and were contaminating the water, and attacking homes and stealing the food.
