

Brief Summary

This report analyses the calls from listeners across the country to Radio Ergo's audience feedback platform in the period 28 May to 3 June 2026. The topic with the biggest numbers of callers this week was rainfall and the impact on lives and livelihoods. Calls about rain came from several regions in Somaliland, as well as from parts of Galmudug and Hiran, and many parts of the south notably Middle Shabelle, Gedo, and Lower Juba. Many callers noted replenishment of resources and recovery of livestock and farms. However, some in central and southern areas said the rains had been short-lived and inadequate, with many noting the scattered nature of the rainfall leaving some areas still dry. A few callers raised concerns about the lack of access to nutritional supplements due to the diversion of aid. Others were concerned by conflict affecting communities, the lack of jobs, and mosquito infestations. The following summarises the calls by theme.

Nutrition & Aid – in Hiran region, a caller in Beledweyne said they needed Plumpy Nut supplements but due to rampant corruption this aid was being sold. Another in Mataban said they often saw these nutritional supplement sachets on sale. A caller in Beledhawo, Gedo region, wanted to know where they could go to access malnutrition treatment.

Food Security – a caller in Robow in Lower Juba region said the area had been getting rainfall but they had already lost their cows to the drought.

Jobs – a caller in Jowhar, M. Shabelle, said men working as porters were unable to find jobs at the moment and needed help.

Health – a caller in Beledhawo, Gedo region, said they had had heavy rainfall this year and their crops were doing well, but people were concerned about infestations of mosquitoes.

Conflict – a caller in Guriel, Galmudug, said they were concerned about ongoing clan conflict and gunfire in their area. He said there had not been any attempt at peace settlements by the government or elders. A caller in Mahaday, M. Shabelle, said civilians were caught up in the middle of Al-Shabab and government clashes and ordinary people were dying. In Baidoa, a caller said insecurity in the area at the end of May had forced people to flee their homes. He wanted his message aired, saying they were suffering and needed to go back home. In early June, another caller in Baidoa said the conflict had stopped and having received rainfall people were now able to go back to work on their farms.

Climate & Environment – a caller in Bay region wanted climate experts to explain why during the rainy season they were facing drought and water shortage instead of getting rain. In Bakool region, a caller complained about people cutting down trees and wanted to know how to protect the trees.

Agriculture – farmers from across the regions called for advice from experts about various crop pests affecting them. In Jowhar, a farmer growing maize said their crops didn't get much rain and the plants had turned yellow. He wanted to know what they could do to rescue the maize crops.

Livestock – a caller in Togdher wanted treatment advice for their young goats and camels with mouth sores. Callers in Galkayo and Kismayo had problems with their goats coughing. A female caller in Bardera said her sheep were coughing and vomiting and needed treatment. A caller in Ethiopia's Somali region mentioned CCPP disease affecting their livestock.

Rainfall – in Somaliland, callers from Erigabo and northern highland parts of Sanag region said they had received rainfall that was helping them. Callers in Baliaad and Beer in Togdher region reported the replenishing of water sources and recovery of livestock.

A female caller in Sahil said they were doing well with the rainfall, although an influx of people migrating to the area was making water become scarce. A few callers in parts of Galgadud region mentioned having good rainfall that was helping recovery from drought. Several in Hiran region noted beneficial rainfall, with one caller in Jalalaqsi saying the farmers were back in their fields after recovering from some flooding. Callers in various parts of Middle and Lower Shabelle regions talked of good rainfall and recovery, and wished other areas that hadn't had rainfall also to be blessed. A number of callers across Gedo and Lower Juba regions said they were having good rainfall that was helping crops and livestock.

Drought – female callers in Abudwak and Guriel in Galgadud complained that the rainy season had not lasted long and the weather was hot. A caller in Baidoa noted continuing drought and heat, whilst a caller in Bardera said they hadn't had rain recently and hoped for more.
