

Weekly Feedback Report	 CONTACT ADDRESS: ltu@mediasupport.org Issued: 13 Sept 2026
 Brief Summary
This week (3-9 September 2026), a number of callers to Radio Ergo's independent, nationwide audience feedback platform noted beneficial rainfall, particularly in Jubaland (notably in Kismayo) and Shabelle areas, some in South West, and a few in scattered central areas. However, reports of drought and harsh related impacts on livelihoods dominated the week's feedback, with most callers on these themes coming from Somaliland, Puntland, central, and southern regions – with some notable pockets in Lower Shabelle and Gedo regions. Some farmers in riverine areas mentioned having good harvests, whilst others close to the Shabelle and Juba rivers expressed high concerns over flooding or potential risks. Conflict in various parts of the country was high on people's agendas, as were mental health concerns. Livestock callers had questions for veterinary experts about goat and camel diseases. Audiences also showed concerns over environmental issues such as deforestation and the wanton dumping of plastic and other waste affecting people and livestock. The following summarises the calls by theme. Floods – a caller in Kurtunwarey, Lower Shabelle (5 September) said they were concerned about the risk of flooding, as the river had brought in a large volume of water. The strong river waves had swept away a boat, and one cow had drowned [Radio Ergo reporters are investigating this report locally]. He said they were appealing for help. Another caller in Jamame, Lower Juba, said they were among families living near the river and were hearing warnings about possible floods. He wanted to know more about the current situation in terms of river levels and actual threats or risks so they could prepare themselves. Food security – in Hirshabelle, a farmer in Goonyaale, Hiran, said they were getting abundant water from the river and were working on their farms, where their crops were growing well. Another in Omar-Guudle village [Lower Shabelle?] said on 8 September that they were harvesting good produce. A farmer in Jowhar, M. Shabelle, said the river had a lot of water and they were having a good farm harvest. IDPs - a caller in Guriel, Galgadud, said they had been displaced from Adado by drought and needed help. Conflict – a caller in Baidoa said they were concerned about conflict that had caused mass displacement. They were among the families who had moved 30 km from the city and were now short of food and water, and wanted help. A caller in Puntland's Bari region was concerned about conflicts going on across the country and called for peace. A female caller in Hindere, Galgadud, said they were suffering due to insecurity and the problems Al-Shabaab was causing to civilians. Mental Health – a female caller in Baidoa called for peace and an end to the conflict there. She also wanted to ask the radio mental health experts about the causes of dizziness and constant headaches. Another caller wanted to know how they could treat a woman who had been chained up for a long time due to a mental illness. A caller in Dollow, Gedo, wanted to know why someone would feel sensitive to light and imagined sounds and felt constant suspicion or doubt. Livestock – callers to the radio vet programmes had complaints about goat and camel diseases and conditions including parasites, mouth diseases, cowpox, skin diseases, and problems caused from ingesting plastic waste.

Environment – callers complained about plastic and other waste being dumped without controls causing risks to people and livestock, as well as rampant deforestation for charcoal production with no sanctions from authorities.

Rainfall – in Galgadud, three callers said they had rainfall and better conditions for livestock, although one woman in Guriel noted that drought conditions prevailed not far away. Several in Hiran and M. Shabelle said they had rain that was helping their crops to grow. A farmer in Kurtunwarey, L. Shabelle, said they were doing well with the rainfall, but had no workers to work on the farms. Two in Baidoa noted good rainfall. In Lower Juba, one in Afmadow and many others in Kismayo cited good rainfall, although one woman said strong winds had destroyed shelters.

Drought – in the north, several called from Togdher region, especially Burao area, citing harsh drought conditions. One said they hadn't received the previous Gu seasonal rains, nor had they had much rain this season. He said water was acutely short. A caller in Oodweyne said they faced severe drought after failed rains and that livestock were dying of drought and diseases. Several called from parts of Sanag, including Arale and Garadag, citing extreme drought and asking for help. Callers in Puntland's Bari region, and in Harardere and Galkayo in Mudug, appealed for aid due to drought conditions. In Galgadud, several in Abudwak said the climate was hot and dry and their livestock were diseased and dying. A caller in Bahdo said the rural areas were experiencing severe drought that had had a devastating impact on livelihoods. He said livestock were weak and people were malnourished. Callers in Guriel and Shiqaley also said livestock were dying and water aid was urgently needed. Several callers in parts of Hiran said the drought was prolonged; a few in Baidoa said similar. A caller in Mandere, Middle Shabelle, said on 3 September that the water levels in the river had risen and then suddenly dropped and they had no water for irrigation. In Lower Shabelle, a caller in Wanlaweyn said they faced severe hardship and needed humanitarian aid. He added that they were short of food and medicines and essential goods and supplies were not reaching the area as they were isolated and cut off from the rest of the region. In Gedo region, among several callers from Dollow, one said the river had receded leading to water shortage and they now depended on hand dug wells for water.
